INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff Vernon Unsworth's trial subpoena duces tecum to Defendant Elon Musk is designed solely to harass Mr. Musk. It seeks production of documents detailing Mr. Musk's finances, including his financial statements, calculations of net worth, income tax returns, income statements, and documents reflecting ownership in real property, credit availability, liquid assets, and shares held in various companies. For several reasons, the Court should not order production of these documents.

First, the subpoena is not a proper trial subpoena. If Mr. Unsworth needed this detailed financial information (which he does not, as explained below), he should have sought it during discovery, not at trial.

Second, during discovery, Mr. Unsworth sought information on Mr. Musk's net worth, and Mr. Musk has already provided it, under oath. He testified that his net worth was substantially in excess of $1 billion. Mr. Unsworth thus already has the information he needs.

Third, Mr. Unsworth's justification for the subpoena—that the detailed information sought in the subpoena is relevant to punitive damages—is sophistry. In this lawsuit, in which Mr. Unsworth is seeking “presumed damages,” punitive damages are limited to the amount of compensatory damages. There is no amount of compensatory damages that a jury could properly award Mr. Unsworth on his claim, for which any net worth of Mr. Musk in excess of $1 billion would be relevant. Thus, any additional information regarding Mr. Musk's personal finances has no legitimate bearing on the jury's decision on punitive damages, if it awards any at all.

Fourth, the requested information is highly prejudicial and will inflame the jury and cause confusion, given that it is not relevant to any claim or measure of damages.

The Court should quash Mr. Unsworth's attempt to obtain untimely,

1 irrelevant, and inadmissible discovery from Mr. Musk.

2 STATEMENT OF RELEVANT FACTS

3 A. Mr. Unsworth's Discovery Requests.

4 On June 18, 2019, Mr. Unsworth served discovery on Mr. Musk seeking 5 documents and testimony for calculating Mr. Musk's net worth. (Declaration of 6 Michael Lifrak in Support of Motion to Quash ("Lifrak Decl.") Exs. 1, 2.) Mr.
7 Musk objected to the requests on the basis that information regarding personal 8 financial affairs is protected under the California Constitution's right to privacy, and 9 that his precise net worth, or any net worth above $1 billion, is irrelevant in light of 10 the Supreme Court's decision in State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538
11 U.S. 408, 425 (2003). (Lifrak Decl. Ex. 3.) Nonetheless, Mr. Musk stipulated that 12 his net worth exceeds $1 billion. (Lifrak Decl. Ex. 4.) Mr. Musk also answered 13 questions at his deposition regarding his net worth and stated that it was several 14 times higher. (Lifrak Decl. ¶7.) Mr. Unsworth propounded no further discovery on 15 this topic, nor did he move to compel any further information from Mr. Musk.

16 B. Mr. Unsworth's Trial Subpoena.

17 On November, 12, 2019, Mr. Unsworth served a trial subpoena duces tecum
18 on Mr. Musk. It included ten requests for the production of documents, probing
19 every area of Mr. Musk's finances, including:

- 20 1. Financial Statements reflecting Mr. Musk's net worth as of the Trial
21 Date and as of the Subpoena Date.
- 22 2. Financial Statements reflecting the net worth of Excession, LLC as of 23 the Trial Date and as of the Subpoena Date.
- 24 3. Documents sufficient to enable calculation of Mr. Musk's net worth as 25 of the Trial Date and as of the Subpoena Date.
- 26 4. The most recent federal income tax returns of Mr. Musk and of 27 Excession, LLC as of December 3, 2019.

1 5. Documents sufficient to calculate the amount of income Mr. Musk
2 received, and the amount of his expenses, during the year prior to the Trial Date.

3 6. Documents sufficient to identify all available liquid assets (including 4 cash) of Mr. Musk and any Affiliated Entity as of the Trial Date and as of the 5 Subpoena Date.

6 7. Documents sufficient to identify all real property Mr. Musk or any 7 Affiliated Entity owns, and all mortgages on that real property, as of the Trial Date
8 and as of the Subpoena Date.

9 8. Documents sufficient to identify the total amount of shares of Tesla,
10 Inc. and SpaceX owned by Mr. Musk or any Affiliated Entity, and all pledges of all 11 or any portion of those shares, as of the Trial Date and as of the Subpoena Date.

12 9. Documents sufficient to identify all amounts and sources of credit 13 available to Mr. Musk or any Affiliated Entity as of the Trial Date and as of the 14 Subpoena Date.

15 10. Documents reflecting Mr. Musk's financial ability to pay any judgment
16 rendered against him in this case.

17 (Lifrak Decl. Ex. 5.)

18 The subpoena comes two months after the close of the discovery on 19 September 13, 2019, and seeks nine categories of new information that Mr.
20 Unsworth never before requested. The parties have met and conferred, and Plaintiff
21 refuses to withdraw the subpoena.

22 I. THE COURT SHOULD QUASH THE TRIAL SUBPOENA.

23 A. The Trial Subpoena is Beyond the Scope of FRCP 45.

24 Trial subpoenas simply cannot be used to conduct discovery. Puritan Inv.
25 Corp. v. ASLL Corp., 1997 WL 793569, at *1 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 9, 1997) (“Trial
26 subpoenas may not be used, however, as means to engage in discovery after the 27 discovery deadline has passed.”); nSight, Inc. v. PeopleSoft, Inc., 2006 WL 988807, 28 at *2-3 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 13, 2006) (trial subpoenas can only be used in “narrow

1 circumstances” and cannot be used to “obtain discovery beyond the discovery
 2 period.”); Hatcher v. Precoat Metals, 271 F.R.D. 674, 675 (N.D. Ala. 2010)
 3 (quashing trial subpoena seeking categories of documents that should have been 4 sought in discovery); Integra Lifesciences I, Ltd. v. Merck KGaA, 190 F.R.D. 556,
 5 562 (S.D. Cal. 1999) (trial subpoena was “an improper attempt to obtain discovery
 6 after the cut-off date”); Ghandi v. Police Dept. of City of Detroit, 747 F.2d 338, 354-
 7 355 (6th Cir. 1984) (affirming district court’s decision to quash subpoena issued on 8 the eve of trial for new documents).

9 But “discovery” is exactly what Mr. Unsworth is seeking here. He did not 10 request these documents in discovery, nor would he have likely been entitled to 11 them, and it is too late now. As described above, Mr. Musk has already provided 12 information regarding his net worth. If Mr. Unsworth wanted information about the 13 further details of Mr. Musk’s financial condition, he should have sought it during 14 discovery.

15 B. The Subpoena Seeks Irrelevant Information.

16 1. The Punitive Damages Available to Mr. Unsworth Must Be 17 Proportional to any Compensatory Damages He Receives.

18 Mr. Unsworth’s punitive damages in this case—if awarded at all—will be 19 capped at a one-to-one (or similar) ratio to any award of compensatory
 20 damages. In State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, the Supreme Court noted 21 that compensatory damages often contain a “punitive element” and stated that where 22 “compensatory damages are substantial, then a lesser ratio, perhaps only equal to
 23 compensatory damages, can reach the outermost limit of the due process
 24 guarantee.” 538 U.S. at 425; see also id. at 429 (“[T]he substantial compensatory 25 damages awarded (a portion of which contained a punitive element), likely would 26 justify a punitive damages award at or near the amount of compensatory 27 damages.”). In applying the State Farm analysis to awards of punitive damages in 28 defamation cases, California Courts and the Ninth Circuit have capped punitive

1 damages at a one-to-one ratio to compensatory damages. See, e.g., Dawe v. Corr.
 2 USA, 506 F. App'x 657, 660 (9th Cir. 2013); Peterson v. Stewart, 2012 WL 541521,
 3 at *13 (Cal. Ct. App. Feb. 17, 2012).

4 In Peterson, the California Court of Appeal held that, in a defamation action,
 5 compensatory damages in the form of “assumed” damages “already contain[] a 6 punitive element” and that “in such circumstances, a lower ratio of punitive to 7 compensatory damages is warranted.” The court affirmed the award of punitive
 8 damages because the ratio of punitive to compensatory damages was “well below 9 the 1-1 ratio that may constitute the ‘outermost limit of the due process guarantee’ in 10 such circumstances.” Peterson, 2012 WL 541521, at *13.

11 2. Because Punitive Damages are Capped, Additional Evidence
 12 of Mr. Musk’s Financial Situation is Irrelevant.

13 Mr. Musk has already stipulated to a value of his net worth for the purpose of 14 calculating punitive damages, and has provided further testimony on the topic under 15 oath. (Lifrak Decl. ¶7, Ex. 4.) To the extent the jury is permitted to consider 16 evidence of Mr. Musk’s net worth in its determination of punitive damages, it will 17 be able to do so.

18 However, given the cap on potential punitive damages, additional and 19 detailed evidence of Mr. Musk’s financial status (including everything sought by 20 Mr. Unsworth’s trial subpoena) is irrelevant. If the jury intends to punish Mr. Musk
 21 for any statements he has made, it can do so up to Constitutional limits of due
 22 process, and no more. See State Farm, 538 U.S. at 425. Accordingly, the numerous 23 categories of new documents requested probing every aspect of Mr. Musk’s and his 24 companies’ financial situation are irrelevant and inadmissible. See Fed. R. Evid.
 25 402 (“Irrelevant evidence is not admissible.”); see also Fresno Rock Taco, LLC v.
 26 Nat’l Sur. Corp., 2013 WL 2182864, at *7 (E.D. Cal. May 20, 2013) (excluding 27 evidence of parent company’s financial status as irrelevant).
 28

1 C. The Subpoena Seeks Information that is More Prejudicial than
 2 Probative.

3 The extensive information Mr. Unsworth now seeks regarding Mr. Musk's
 4 financial situation has no probative value here. But the potential for prejudice is 5 high. See Brough v. Imperial Sterling Ltd., 297 F.3d 1172, 1178-80 (11th Cir. 2002)
 6 ("The general rule is that, during trial, no reference should be made to the wealth or 7 poverty of a party, nor should the financial status of one party be contrasted with the 8 other's." (quotation marks omitted)); Finjan, Inc. v. Sophos, Inc., 2016 WL 9 4560071, at *14-15 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2016) (excluding "evidence about the 10 wealth of Sophos's founders or employees," including their compensation despite 11 the fact that they were testifying witnesses, as "far more likely to be prejudicial than 12 to be probative"); see also Fresno Rock Taco, 2013 WL 2182864, at *7 ("[U]nder
 13 the Rule 403 balancing test, any probative value attributable to the financial 14 statement is significantly outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice in that it
 15 could entice a jury to award punitive damages based on the wealth of Fireman's
 16 Fund's group of companies and not that of Defendant.").

17 Such extensive information regarding Mr. Musk's financial situation will also 18 mislead the jury and confuse the issues. Among other things, if the jury hears such 19 evidence, it may believe that it is entitled to award an amount up to Mr. Musk's net
 20 worth, in punitive damages, which it is not. Because the financial information Mr.
 21 Unsworth seeks is irrelevant and highly prejudicial, it is inadmissible at trial. As 22 such, the Court should quash the trial subpoena duces tecum to Mr. Musk.

23
 24 CONCLUSION

25 For the foregoing reasons, the Court should grant the motion quash the trial
 26 subpoena to Elon Musk.
